

MASS COMM STUDENT CENTRE

Here Lies the Campus Vibe

By: Nurul Iman Zaidi

We all have that one safe space — somewhere we can just be. Whether it's at home, in class, or on campus, we all have our little corner for studying, endless discussions, and maybe a bit of silly gossip too. These spaces become memories we want to relive. And sometimes, we just need a zone for ourselves — not to hide away, but to recharge. A space where imagination sparks from nowhere and ideas flow freely.

Let's be real — being a student means juggling hectic class schedules and long breaks in between. Ever had that two-hour gap between classes? The one that makes you think about hiking back up Bukit Tonggek just to chill in your dorm? Yeah, we've all been there.

Good news for all MassComm students — the Faculty of Communication and Media Studies has just launched a new co-working space designed for students to find comfort between classes. The MassComm Student Centre offers excellent facilities where students can relax in cool air conditioning and work on assignments at the provided tables and chairs.

Now that we've got a place that's truly ours, let's use it wisely and make it special. The Student Centre isn't just a room — it's a reflection of how far our faculty has come in putting students first. When students experience this level of care, they are reminded that education here is truly valued.
